

Social Development is a four cycle elective course offered to juniors and seniors interested in the study of social/cognitive development and psychology. The course examines the three stages of social and cognitive development which include; infancy/childhood, adolescence, and adulthood. Through the examination of the developmental stages students discover the physical and mental growth that occurs during each developmental stage. The course also examines the field of psychology, mental disorders, treatments and therapy, and theories of personality. The goal of this course is to provide students interested in the field of psychology and social/cognitive development an overview of stages of development and various psychology topics to prepare them for success in future post-secondary courses.
